Revenue performance, while growing at consolidated level, is suffering from a general slowdown in its target markets. This environment, after years of strong growth, has given us the opportunity to focus more on cost structure and internal efficiency, significantly improving profitability and competitiveness. Also in 2024, the M&A development strategy continued, as we expanded the consolidation scope and laid the foundation for future advances. The integration of IpTronix was a key step in this direction, as it increased our vertical know-how, enhancing the skills of the Group's engineering team and enabling new lines of business development. We seek to further pursue growth, including through M&A's, tapping into the best opportunities available and in line with the Group's development strategies».*
